

WELCOME

Welcome to the instructional team of the Ell-Saline Schools. We want you to know we appreciate having you as a substitute teacher and we consider you a valued part of our school staff.

“ALL CAN ACHIEVE AND SUCCEED”

The mission of the Ell-Saline Schools is that all students will be provided a safe, stimulating environment so that they will gain the knowledge, skills, and values necessary for living, learning, and working.

EDUCATIONAL PHILOSOPHY USD 307

The educational philosophy of the Ell-Saline Schools is based on the democratic conviction that all children can learn if given the time and resources.

It is the aim of the Board of Education and faculty of USD 307 to provide an educational climate for the development of the individual to the utmost of his/her social, emotional and physical potentialities.

To accomplish this aim, emphasis will be placed upon an instructional program which will:

1. Demonstrate the students' responsible role in society concerning human values, beliefs, cultures, and social responsibilities.
2. Develop the students' ability to think analytically, critically, and creatively in evaluating information to make decisions and to accept consequences of his/her decisions.
3. Develop, through the use of technology and various learning strategies, the students' basic academic skills that will enable him/her to engage in the life-long learning process.
4. Assist the student in understanding and demonstrating the importance of feelings of positive self-image and self-worth.
5. Encourage the student to apply the current principles of good health practices that promote positive physical well being.

SUCCESSFUL SUBSTITUTE TEACHING PRACTICES

If you have ever been a substitute teacher before, you have probably been given a great deal of solicited and unsolicited advice about how to be a successful substitute. This, in practical terms, means going into another teacher's classroom and giving the students a positive educational experience. It sounds simple enough. The following practices will help you be successful as a substitute teacher.

BE PUNCTUAL

Schools are busy places and people are counting on you to be on time in the morning or to any other duty that you may have. If you are supervising students during that time, it becomes even more important that you are on time. The principal of the building may not remember you for being on time, but they will certainly remember you if you are late.

BE PROFESSIONAL

Dress like a professional. Act like a professional (educator), not a babysitter. Treat kids well, teach and interact with them. Use common sense in dealing with behavior problems. Don't make discipline threats that you cannot follow through on.

BE PLEASANT

It should almost go without saying, but being pleasant with faculty and students is imperative to your success as a substitute. If you really have to work at being cordial, respectful, and nice to other people, then you probably shouldn't be working in a school. If you are going to be complimentary to students or others, be sincere.

BE PRACTICAL

You are not going to save the world, change behaviors, or make them all geniuses. What you can do is keep them safe, give them the most positive experience you can that day, and possibly give them one more reason to like school. Don't be naïve or a push over. Take the time to get to know the students, even if the lesson plans that were left for you do not afford you the opportunity.

BE PATIENT

You should expect that some students will try to get away with things. It will take some time for them to get to know what you expect from them. The more you are in a building, the better your experiences will get. The worst thing that you can do as a substitute is to lose your temper.

BE PREPARED

There are so many resources available to teachers and substitute teachers that there is absolutely no reason not to have something prepared to fill in time gaps. You also need to be prepared for misbehavior. Plan for, and expect something to happen. Know in advance how you plan to handle specific misbehaviors. But, don't let it affect your attitude.

LEGAL AND ETHICAL CONCERNS FOR SUBSTITUTES

Although there are many legal and ethical concerns for teachers and substitute teachers, there are several that are of particular importance.

- Never share student information.
- Document student discipline problems.
- Report suspected abuses or neglect to administration.
- Use age appropriate lessons, language and materials.
- Know about accommodations for students with special needs.
- Know all emergency procedures.
